The city of Sterling was donated a parcel of land that formerly housed a gas station. The parcel lies in the heart of the historic downtown business district which has seen significant re-investment and revitalization in recent years. The city hopes to transform the site into a welcoming public plaza that is inclusive to residents and visitors alike in Sterling and greater Logan County.
The preferred final design concept creates a welcoming public space. A large fire pit and custom shade structure hold the center of the plaza and will attract visitors throughout the year. A donor wall will be a key element in the plaza, along with comfortable seating and a small stage. Pedestrian scale brick pillars help welcome visitors at the entrance along Main Street.
