

Carrie Makarewicz
Associate Professor
with Prentiss Dantzler,
Georgia State & Arlie
Adkins, Univ. of Arizona

How do school choice and gentrification interact to affect families with school aged children and the schools they attend?

Early results indicate students of color in rapidly developing neighborhoods (tracts) have a much less stable school landscape than tracts with majority white families and little development.

Interviews and neighborhood case studies will further the analysis.

Also:

- Employers
- Social Services
- Other State Actors

Schools by Tract 1993-2015	Mean Comparison of School Tracts 2000-2010
School Stability	Pop.	Housing	# of Schools Range, avg.	% White*
Stable Schools	-40	+83	1 of 1 or 2 in tract over time	54%
Unstable schools (closed, rebranded, new)	+834	+464	1 of 2 to 12, Avg. = 3, over time	49%

Research Assistant:
Samantha Snyder